The Citizenship and Dementia – International Research Network seeks:

- To promote and engage in international research which seeks to explore meanings and assumptions relating to citizenship when living with dementia and consider their implications for social life and social policy.
- To undertake international comparisons on the meanings, practices and socio-legal and political contexts of citizenship within and across nations and promote academic, public and policy debate about promoting meaningful citizenship.
- To engage in collaborative high-quality research; thereby informing and contributing to debates on citizenship and inclusion when living with dementia.
