

BIBLIOGRAPHY

of recommended preparatory readings

The below course texts are a selection of what you will study during your first course and semester in our master's program.

Texts are listed in order of priority. Incoming students should have the first book on the list – Robert B. Marks, The Origins of the Modern World – before you start the first course, Historical Perspectives on Ethnicity and Migration. Students are also strongly advised to familiarize themselves with the other texts, as this will help you get off to a flying start.

For further questions about readings in the first course Historical Perspectives on Ethnicity and Migration, contact course director, professor Stefan Jonsson (stefan.jonsson@liu.se).
