

Institute for Analytical Sociology

PROGRAMME Spring 2020

The seminars are open to everyone and we very much hope to see you at one of the upcoming events.

SEMINARS

Time: 11.00–12.30, Venue: K0301

January 30

Friedolin Merhout, Duke University

Using experiments and automated text analysis to study the mechanism of backfire effects in correcting misperceptions

February 6

Adel Daoud, Harvard University

The rise of machine learning in the social sciences: New opportunities and pitfalls

February 13

Hanno Kruse, University of Cologne

Crosscutting social circles and boundary making in schools

February 20

Zhiyan Wu, Rotterdam School of Management

West imprint on the east: Historical origins, informal institutions and the rise of philanthropic organizations in China

February 27

Mingshu Wang, University of Twente

Ride-sharing accessibility and built environments

March 5

Mark Alexander Conley,

The Stockholm School of Economics

The motivation of mission statements: How regulatory mode influences workplace discrimination

March 12

Chris Fowler, Penn State University

Who are the people in my neighborhood? Race, scale, and the search for contextual effects

March 19

Mathew Creighton, University College Dublin

The role of education in anti-immigrant sentiment: Experimental and observational approaches

March 26

Sabino Kornrich, New York University Abu Dhabi

Conditionality and consensus on norms about marriage in the United States: A nationally stratified factorial survey experiment

April 2

Beate Volker, University of Amsterdam

Lost letters and imagined social structures. New directions of research on networks and social capital in the era of big data

April 16

Andreas Flache, University of Groningen

Social mechanisms linking segregation and polarization: Insights from computer simulation studies and empirical research

April 23

Stoyan V. Sgourev, ESSEC Business School

Burning the bridges: Authenticity, innovation and transgression in Norwegian black metal

April 30

Isidro Maya Jariego, Sevilla University

Place, time and contexts in the structure of personal networks of immigrants and other people in transition

May 7

Jose Luis Molina,

Autonomous University of Barcelona

Do transnational fields matter? A critical account

May 14

Wojtek Przepiorka, Utrecht University

Testing sociological theories with online market data

June 11

Jonas Wallin, Lund University

Merging correlated independent variables: Clustered variable selection with SLOPE