

REMESO Graduate School

For Swedish and International PhD and MA Students

Institute for Research on Migration, Ethnicity & Society, REMESO
Linköping University, Sweden
Campus Norrköping

REMESO Graduate Course Autumn 2022

Research Methods in Ethnic and Migration Studies, 7,5 hp

Course directors: Olav Nygård (olav.nygard@liu.se) and Kristoffer Jutvik (kristoffer.jutvik@liu.se)

Period: 21 November – 22 December, with intensive week at Campus Norrköping 5 – 9 December.

The course addresses dilemmas and difficulties that researchers confront when collecting and interpreting data about migration, ethnic relations and diversity, discrimination, racism, and social inclusion/exclusion. The course will seek to provide an orientation to the main methodological questions that have to be grasped when conducting research in this field. Different methodological solutions to common research problems will be presented and discussed, covering both quantitative and qualitative methods, including ethnographic research and visual analysis.

Confirmed lecturers: Claudia Tazreiter, Professor in Ethnic and Migration Studies; Peo Hansen, Professor in Political Science; Stefan Jonsson, Professor in Ethnic Studies; Anna Bredström; Xolani Tshabalala. Special guest: Annika Lindberg, School of Global Studies, University of Gothenburg

For more information and registration, contact director of graduate studies Peo Hansen (peo.hansen@liu.se) or the course directors.

Deadline for applications: November 1